Polygraph Testing

Get the true facts, get assurance

You can be the best judge of character in the world, but when you're talking with a practiced liar who's motivated to deceive you, you can look them straight in the eye and never have a clue that they're not telling the truth. That is, until its too late. Don't take chances on relying solely on your instincts. We offer a full range of polygraph testing services that we can administer in your office or at your location.

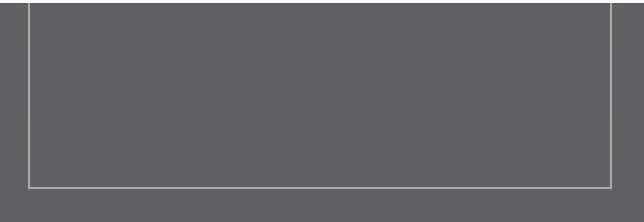

Polygraph, Lie Detector, Psychophysiological Detection of Deception.

A polygraph, also known as a lie detector, and psychophysiological detection of deception (PDD) examination, is an instrument that measures and records several physiological functions, such as, blood pressure, pulse, respiration, and skin conductivity. The subject is asked and answers a series of questions, in the belief that deceptive answers will produce psychophysiological responses that can be differentiated from those associated with non-deceptive answers.

The polygraph examination begins with a pre-test interview to elicit information which will later be used to formulate "control questions, relevant questions, and irrelevant questions." This initial interview is where the examiner must be extremely sensitive to the examinee's background, culture and education, so as to understand the logical reasoning of the subject.

The examiner will explain how the polygraph instrument works, shows the examinee actual polygraph chart tracings, identifies psychophysiological responses on the chart tracings, and emphasizes the importance of answering the questions truthfully. When the examinee fully understands the procedure, and all of his, or, her questions are answered by the examiner, the question formulation begins.

With the full understanding of the questions to be used and the agreement by both the examinee and examiner to use the relevant questions, the examination begins. Upon completion of the test, the chart tracings are marked and scored, shown to the examinee with a full explanation of the results. A report containing the results with the examiner's opinion is then given to the examinee.

The Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 prevents employers from using polygraph for pre-employment screening or during employment; however, there are certain exceptions. In the United States, the State of New Mexico admits polygraph testing before juries in certain circumstances. In many other states, polygraph examiners are permitted

Private Investigators Conduct Asset Investigations

What is an asset investigation

Asset investigations seek to uncover tangible hidden assets such as cash, vehicles, securities, real estate, lines of credit, and liens against those assets or bankruptcies.

Who requests an asset investigation

American Eagle Private Investigators have performed asset investigations for:

- Individuals prior to marriage
- Individuals prior to or during a divorce
- Individuals prior to contract litigation
- People preparing to invest money in a business venture
- Companies prior to business partnerships or contracts
- Companies seeking to recover vehicles

What information does American Eagle Investigations need to perform an asset investigation

The following information is helpful to speed the investigative process:

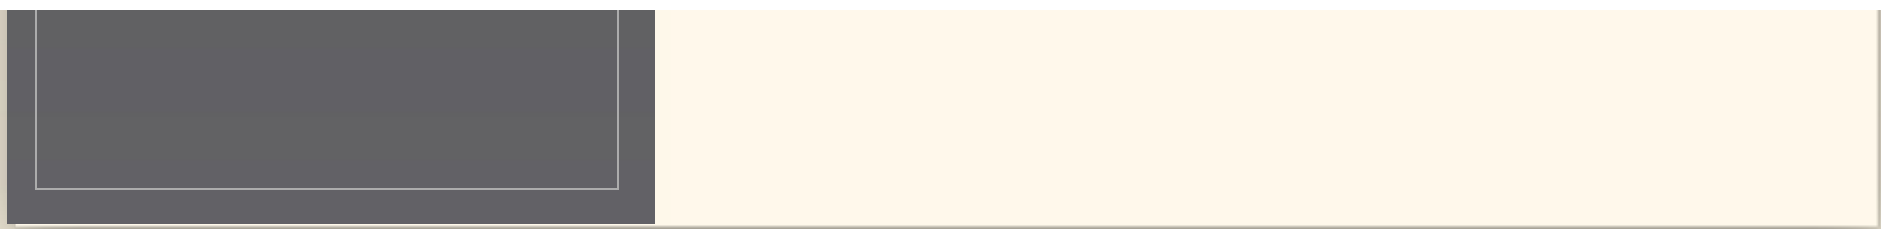

- The Subject's legal name and any aliases
- The Subject's birth date
- The Subject's social security number
- The Subject's current address
- The Subject's employment information
- The Subject's telephone number(s)
- Names of the Subject's relatives

Changes in the law have made some types of asset searches more difficult. Subpoenas only cover a single bank branch, not the entire branch network. Furthermore, while an asset investigation can readily uncover the name of a bank, locating an account number is a more time consuming and costly challenge.

How you will benefit from our investigation

At American Eagle Investigations we offer an unwavering commitment to uncover the truth. Our asset investigation report will detail our findings and provide you with peace of mind. We recommend you begin your due diligence by contacting us for a free confidential consultation. Call 212.344.8997 or use our contact form.

Background Checks

Know all the facts

When you get right down to it, how much can you really find out about a prospective employee in the course of a few interviews. But once they're hired, consider how much they're able to access - personnel files, payroll records, account numbers, passwords. When you stop to think about it, how can you bring someone into your company without learning everything there is to know about them?

At American Eagle Investigations, we have years of experience conducting pre-employment screening services for some of the leading firms in the country. If they're hiding something, count on us to find it.

Executive and VIP Protection

American Eagle Investigations provides Executive protection and VIP security for a variety of clients. Executive Protection, Personal Protection or Close Protection involves the protecting of a person in a covert manner with highly skilled and trained professionals. These trained professionals stay in close proximity to the person they are protecting in order to allow them to take action if the need arises. At the same time these Executive Protection Specialists must allow the individual they are protecting to move freely and maintain a normal life. Threats facing an executive or vip today can vary widely depending on the individuals profile. Each executive vip protection profile varies by the size of the company and the industry the person is in. Knowing the range of risks involved the Executive Protection Specialist knows that protecting an individual is very different discipline from securing a facility.

Executive Protection involves a great deal of planning in order to allow the individual being protected to seem as if they are not being protected at all. An executive cannot be locked down like an entrance to a building, there are numerous ways for an attacker to get to an executive or vip, including through family members.

At American Eagle Investigations we take the time to conduct a thorough risk analysis. Is there a history of threats against the individual, why does this person need protection? Do they travel often to dangerous places? Does their family also need protection? Is this person a high profile person or does this person keep a low profile? Once you determine the needs of the individual you need to know everything about their public and private life. This is called a “principle profile” and it requires the individual’s full cooperation.

The term executive protection professional should tell you all you need to know about the individual you are hiring. At American Eagle Investigations you are hiring a highly trained individual that has experience in defensive driving, medical training, the ability to defend an attack on a principle, a conspicuous pride in staying fit, and has good judgment to assess threats and employ the appropriate countermeasures. American Eagle Investigations has the ability to provide individuals who have the ability to be a mirror image of his principal in professional dress and demeanor.

Contact American Eagle Investigations if you think you may need protection and we will be happy to discuss you individual needs. We will conduct a threat assessment and provide our recommendations.

Cheating Spouse Investigations

At American Eagle Investigations we are often asked by our clients to obtain evidence that their spouse is cheating. If you see signs that your spouse may be cheating our private detectives will find the truth. Our Investigators obtain divorce evidence of a cheating spouse by conducting covert surveillance of a subject. The subject is followed and video and pictures are obtained of the affair. We have collected a myriad of evidence for our clients and our videos prove beyond a shadow of a doubt if your spouse is cheating. Our reports contain a detailed accounting of the surveillance along with still pictures and video of the subject. Polygraph testing is rarely used to investigate a cheating spouse.

Attorneys use American Eagle Investigations because of our tenacity and talent for surveillance to obtain divorce evidence they can use in court. Other types of divorce evidence attorneys ask our Private Detectives to provide include hidden asset searches, hidden bank accounts, cell number searches and telephone records.

Criminal Background Checks

At American Eagle Investigations our clients often ask us to perform criminal background checks for their prospective employees. We always go right to the source, which means we run our criminal background checks at the Courthouse. We have a network of researchers around the country that can provide us with up to date accurate criminal records. Obtaining records from the Courthouse gives our clients the exact information they are looking for. Criminal background checks run by the court will provide the date of arrest, the case number, the original charge, and the disposition (meaning if the individual was found guilty, or pled guilty, the disposition date, and if the person received probation or parole).

Some investigators use databases but we have found that resource does not provide the most up to date accurate information.

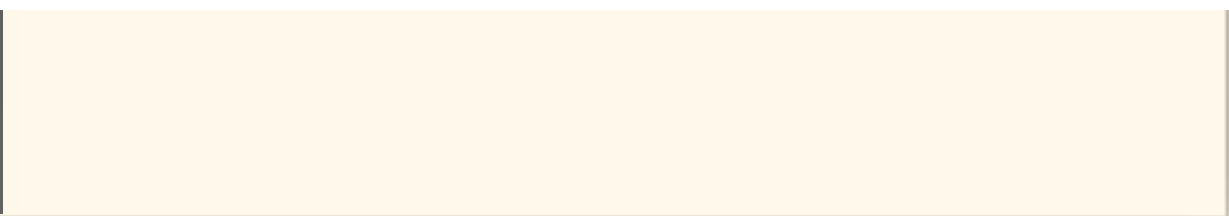

We also perform criminal background checks for individuals who may want to investigate a boyfriend, girlfriend, or a fiance. Performing a premarital background check before getting married is a good idea. Some people want to know everything about a person that they are about to get married to or are planning to live with. For example we had a person who was concerned about his girlfriend that was living with him. He said that what she had told him about her past just did not make sense. Sure enough we conducted a criminal background check and we found that this individual had multiple arrests and convictions in four different states. Needless to say our client was pleased with the results and made an informed decision about his future.

We conduct criminal background checks for both large and small corporations. These companies want to know who they are hiring and what they have done in the past. Most companies are looking to see if an individual was convicted of larceny or embezzlement, they do not want to hire an individual who may hurt their company in any way. The bottom line is companies want to protect their assets and do not need any unknown partners.

We also provide companies with sex offender registry checks, some of our clients deal with children and families and have their employees go inside peoples homes, it is in their best interest to know who will be involved with anyone that their employees will come in contact with.

A criminal background check is a great tool for both individuals and companies to know who they are dealing with. American Eagle Investigations can provide accurate information at reasonable rates.
